....Joe...those look great...I especially like the 18K ring....Have you calculated on how much it is worth??
...I mean what the gold content is worth....I think that you have encouraged me ...it is already in the 90's here.....maybe I will go to the beach Sunday Evening or Monday.....do you hunt in the sand up on the beach or are you out in the water??...HH.....SHARK

The one with the stones, the stones are fake but its stamped 18K. I don't have a scale so I don't know any values at this time (maybe I will go get a scale!). I'm going out early tomorrow, as the parking is much much easier. All of the rings (except the tungsten carbide, which was at the high tide line) were found in the dry sand, as most things this time of year.

Hey Joe the 18k looks good. Where did you find it in the sand or in the H2o?

..I think in a previous post that he said that the rings were found at the High Tide Mark...THIS IS A GOOD STRATEGY....if you are Not Sure on where to hunt ...Hunt the Wet Area between the Low and High Tide Marks....I HAVE A BEACH WHERE I DO THIS IN FRONT OF A 3 STORY BEACH PAVILLION....Also unlike land hunting where most ignore the loud signals....do not ignore the ear blasters....i have found sunglasses.....eyeglasses....car keys...automotive stuff...scuba type knives....a friend found a pistolit was either a 22 or 32 revolver...SHARK

All but the tungsten carbide were dry sand, believe it or not. Found another silver ring today in the dry sand...did find some coins near the tide line but no gold today...Was a great day anyway with $5.28 in clad.

Here's today's haul...

I tried to luck up Public School 15, but there are like 7 or 8 schools that bear that name. I did help someone else try and find their titanium ring, but to no avail. It was a good day, overall. Oh and not shown was a button that read "Queen B*" that I thought was humorous.
